FRANCIS CARED

Brewer, April 1 1884

A Washington despatch says It is generally understood that Speaker Carlisle will take the floor in advocacy of the Morrison bill. This is something quite unusual in a Speaker.

The friends of Mr Morrison propose to bring his name forward as a Presidential candidate during the tariff debate. If this is done Morrison will have an opportunity to appreciate the force of the saying: Save me from my friends.

Those men and papers that are constantly claiming that the members of the Pennsylvania delegation will not give Mr Blaine their hearty support in the National Convention simply insult the delegates who are bound by every sense of honor to carry out the wishes of the people of that State who are overwhelmingly in favor of the nomination of Mr Blaine.

The recent Republican Convention in Illinois proposed Logan as the candidate of that State. In regard to the other candidates the feeling was manifest as follows: At the mention of James G Blaine there was tremendous cheering, waving of hats and cries of "Blaine Blaine." A reference to Senator Edmunds elicited a mild outburst of applause while a mention of President Arthur's name was received with cheers.

Mr Phelps of New Jersey, who was elected a State Convention delegate to Chicago is reported as saying "I am for Blaine and I think he will be nominated. In 1880, when we went to Chicago for Blaine there was a solid wall of 306 against us. It was like granite and there was no possibility of making any impression upon it. Talk to any one of those 306 about Blaine or any other candidate and he would say, and invariably did say, that it was useless to mention any such name to them. The result proved that this was true. This time however, we have no such organization to oppose us, and going there as we shall with at least one-third of the Convention for Blaine and a majority of the other delegates with their minds made up for no particular candidate, we shall be able, I think, to nominate him certainly on the first day's balloting."

It was expected that fifteen of the district delegates from New York to Chicago would be nominally for President Arthur says the Tribune, and that proved to be the result of Saturday night's conventions. In one district—the 18th—in which there are regular delegations for Arthur, contesting delegates were also sent to Chicago. That will make two contests from this State in the National Convention, the XIth District having also failed to agree. The delegates from the XXIIId District will be chosen at Lisbon, owing to the failure to elect in a District Convention. The delegates from this State now stand: For President Arthur, 23; Mr Blaine, 2; Mr Edmunds, 9; and Arthur, 6; but without avowed preferences. The four delegates at large to be chosen at the State Convention will probably be for Mr Blaine.

Hon. Shelby M. Cullom, United States Senator from Illinois in a recent address to the Republicans of his State, offered a few suggestions worthy of general perusal. "We have over 60 000,000 of people in this country constituting the American Nation. One of the great duties of the government is to protect its people—to protect them in their liberties, in their property, and to encourage and foster and promote industries which will enable them to develop the resources of the Nation and, as a people advance in all that goes to make a higher civilization. It is capable of statistical proof that wages in this country are from 100 to 200 per cent higher than they are in Europe in all the leading industries. From whatever cause or causes, it is an undeniable fact that our laboring people are better paid and better fed, more prosperous and more happy, than are the laboring classes of any other country on the globe. Is it to be the policy of this country to adopt any measure or system of legislation which is likely to reduce the wages of the laboring people of the land? The Republican party is thoroughly committed against any policy which will reduce wages or put out the fires of the furnaces and mills, or close the mines of the country."

Will the Greenbackers Surrender?

Mr B. H. Moore is out with a card in the Commercial in which he repudiates the so-called Greenback caucus, Friday night, saying it was a packed affair and that he does not consider himself a delegate elected by the Greenbackers of Bangor. In examining the list of delegates fully indorsed by the Greenbackers of Bangor we find that the gentleman who was captured by the Democratic caucus with the intention of leading the Greenbackers in the Democratic ranks is not there. A very few of the Democrats present took the opportunity to publicly declare that they were opposed to fusion, but the action of those men who accept the general policy of the party in this section in securing control of the caucus Friday night, shows that this alleged opposition is insincere.

From the Greenbacker present, a man who is thoroughly opposed to anything that approaches a surrender to the Democracy, we learn that the resolution instructing the delegates to adjourn the Lewiston Convention to meet with the Democratic Convention in June, that was printed in the Commercial as being adopted was in reality withdrawn, although practically the same result was accomplished by an ingenious resolution presented by a well known Democratic worker, to leave the decision of this question to the discretion of H. M. Plaisted who is constituted by the resolution as the "boss of the delegation." The shrewdness in getting this resolution through the caucus after objections had been raised to the original resolution is appreciated by the Greenbackers, like baggage.

The majority of the Greenbackers are opposed to any union with the Democrats and there promises to be a rather lively time at the Lewiston Convention, but whether they will be able to cope with their shrewder and unscrupulous rivals remains to be seen. If one can write into the Greenback movement a desire on the part of the leaders to secure offices for themselves, it is considerably strengthened by the fusion proposition.

Forest Fires in South Carolina.

WIDESPREAD DESTRUCTION—REMARKABLE ESCAPE OF THREE CHURCHES.

The forest fires, fanned by the gale, are over large areas of Richland, Lexington, Fairfield, Kershaw, Chesterfield, Sumter, Orangeburg, Clarendon, Williamsburg, Darlington, Lancaster, Marlboro, Colleton, Aiken and Berkeley Counties. The destruction of houses, valuable timber, fencing, growing crops and live stock was the most widespread ever known in the history of the State. It is impossible to estimate the amount of damage, but it will aggregate many hundreds of thousands of dollars. In Kershaw County the fires were especially terrific, sweeping over a thickly settled locality and destroying houses, timber and fencing for many miles. It was with great difficulty that the flourishing town of Camden was saved, it being for twenty-four hours surrounded on all sides by the flames. Large numbers of cattle and hogs feeding in the woods were roasted alive. Three-quarters of the pine forests in the country were destroyed, thus breaking up the entire turpentine business in that section.

Three churches escaped destruction in a remarkable way. Antioch Church is surrounded by heavy pine trees, and just before the fire reached it the flames divided and went around it, coming together on the opposite side, and sweeping on without harming the church. At Mt. Zion the flames acted in a similar manner, passing close around the church, but without injuring it. At Pine Tree Church the fire passed under and around the building, burning straw, wood and lumber around it, but doing no injury to the church itself. At Sandy Grove the fire went through the churchyard, burning all the fencing, railing and sheds around it and in the cemetery adjoining the church, but no harm came to the church. The damage in Kershaw County will amount to fully $100,000. In Clarendon and Darlington counties the damage done to the turpentine farms is irreparable.

$200 a Plate.

THE RARITY AND ELEGANCE OF A DINNER LATELY GIVEN IN PARIS.

At a small dinner party given recently at the Cafe Anglais, a few evenings since, the famous orange grove celery was brought on, says a Paris letter to the New York Times. By what mysterious influence this favor was obtained, I cannot say. There were only five persons at the dinner table, so it must have been given in deference to the quality of the guests, and not in homage to their number. A Russian who last winter—bursting with riches—offered £100,000 for the privilege of giving a dinner in the grove, and the offer was refused. The name of the Orangerie may not impart any fixed idea of the place to your readers, for it is certainly unknown to the great mass of Parisians. Club men are familiar with the existence of the ghosts a legendary fiction more than as a positive fact. The place is thus called because it contains an immense iron orange tree, which spreads its branches in all directions.

Inside of the crystal fruit, hanging in almost too dense clusters to do justice to nature even in tropical luxuriance, are gas jets. This artificial tree divides up one section of the wine cellars, and in this spot on special occasions coffee and liqueurs are served. The other cellars are in their turn lit with luminous grapes hanging from iron branches and factitious leaves. The wine of the wine stored away in the Orangerie is estimated at £,000,000. There are six bottles of Chateau Lafitte of the vintage of 1805, which could not be bought at any price, and which are marked in the list of £1,500 the bottle. Some rare Margaux is estimated at £200 the bottle, but of this there is a reasonable supply and it can be purchased. It takes only an hour to light the cellars, and they are seldom, if ever, illuminated in their full expanse, as the scent becomes prejudicial to the wine.

Every one familiar with Paris life knows that while the table is considered of superior quality at the Cafe Anglais, its wide reputation is entirely due to the selection of gourmets, to the wines. People who dine there, and who know where they are eating and why they go, simply indulge in an extra bottle of old wine in season a quiet dinner of one or more of the specialties of the cook. The dinner referred to above was marked by the presence of a novelty—a soup called "Consomme Queen of the Fields." As this letter is not a gastronomical treatise, I will only say that each soup-plate as it appeared on the table seemed filled with marguerites of different sizes. They floated in all their white majesty in a sea of insidious dissolution. It was a puree of green peas, white truffles formed the tender heart of the flowers. The dinner was given by a most bon vivant, and cost $200 a plate.

Bulwer Lytton's Bridge.

Where it Touches the Shores and the Great Column to Allstream.

"What a beautiful bridge between old age and childhood is religion. How intuitively the child leans upon and worships on entering life, and how instinctively, on quitting life, the old man turns back to pray and worship, putting himself again side by side with the infant," remarks Sir E. Bulwer Lytton, in his "Strange Story."

Yes, but between the distant abutments the bridge of life has many high and awful arches, through which the wild waters dash and roar in wrath and desolation. Prayer and worship alone do not suffice for these. Nature's solid rocks must be touched by science, and human art and skill must rear man solidly the structure's crown. God's will is best accomplished in this life by human hands for the cure of diseases. Whom He has placed under their control. Neither the child's trustful "Our Father," nor the old man's "Prayer" are not to be "pushed in extremities," will relief this by the weight of a single finger.

God and all are due—then faith and prayer—to the Great Physician itself. Divinity heals through its agents, and those agents are the discoveries of man, not the vague unknown agents of prophets or seers. Is life a burden to you? Does ache drag you down? Prepare to conquer it. Life's pleasures make you exultant! You are not well. Your blood is sluggish and tainted, perhaps; or some impurity is in the air you breathe or drink. The fact may have taken the form of dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, malaria, pains in the stomach, chronic headache, or any of a dozen other ills. PARKER'S TONIC will invigorate you, and, fresh air to expand the lungs, and those who have been shut up in damp, foul cellars powerful, pure, delicious, scientific, safe—the keystone of the central arch of the bridge of life.

PARKER'S TONIC

For sale by all druggists.
